

Management PhD Proseminar (B9515)

Fall 2022 Bidding Only

Instructor: Rebecca Ponce de Leon

Columbia Business School

Office:

Course Description

The goal of the proseminar is two-fold: (1) to introduce PhD students to the breadth and depth of scholarly research happening in the Management Division, and (2) to provide a weekly forum where students can learn about the process of producing scholarship more generally. Each week, a faculty member in organizational behavior, organizational theory, or strategy will present some of their current work and hold a ‘behind the scenes’ discussion of the research production process. This course is required for first-year Management PhD students, and is a great opportunity to get to know faculty and the state of the field through research.

Expectations & Evaluation

All students are expected to attend and actively participate in class. Active participation requires (1) that students print-out and read the article(s) posted to our course Canvas site before class each week, and (2) that they come prepared to ask questions and engage in discussion with the visiting professor and your classmates. Please let me know in advance if you cannot make it to class.

The following weights will be used to calculate your final course grade:

Attendance.....	50%
Active Engagement & Participation.....	50%

Management Proseminar – 2021 Schedule

January 13	Vanessa Burbano
January 20	Adam Galinsky
January 27	Bruce Kogut
February 3	Kathy Harrigan
February 10	Shai Davidai
February 17	Mabel Abraham
February 24	Michael Mauskopf
March 3	NO CLASS (SPRING BREAK)
March 10	Jorge Guzman
March 17	Bo Cowgill
March 31	Joel Brockner
April 7	Sheena Iyengar
April 14	Malia Mason

Please Join Zoom Meeting using the link below (also available on the Zoom tab on Canvas):

<https://gsb-columbia-edu.zoom.us/j/95459740396?pwd=emVZd3hudndSVC9SRU9TUG5XQIRIZz09>

Meeting ID: 954 5974 0396
Passcode: PPS001